Still Stagnation

economy may seem encouraging. Actually it is disappointing.

Last June Mr. Fleming's budget speech predicted a "modest" increase of 3 per cent in the Gross National Product, the over-all measurement of Canada's wealth, provided the government did nothing to stimulate it. With new measures of stimulation, Mr. Fleming expected a much larger growth.

According to the Canadian Press the GNP probably grew this year by 2 per cent, though final figures, not yet compiled, may push that figure up to 3 per cent.

Clearly Mr. Fleming's stimulants—the devalued dollar, the gigantic deficits and the rest—have not yet produced the results he had ex-

But Mr. Fleming is by nature an optimist. In 1960 he promised Parliament a growth of 5 per cent the GNP and a year later had to admit that the actual figure was only 2 per cent in real terms.

The collapse of his economic assumptions turned his theoretically balanced budget into another huge deficit. This year he felt compelled to budget deliberately for a deficit still larger in the hope of encouraging the business recov-ery which he had predicted in 1960.

If his assumptions have failed again in 1961 he may argue that the "modest" growth of 2 or possibly 3 per cent in the GNP is not too bad a figure by historical comparison. For many countries it would be quite a satisfactory figure, but not for Canada. Our population is growing so rapidly that this measure of economic growth really represents no growth at all.

In fact, on a per capita basisthe true measurement—Canada is poorer today than it was in 1956 before the present government took office. In its entire term so far the

IN THE HEADLINES THE economy has remained stagnant, on year-end news of Canada's a per capita basis, when extraordinary growth was required to keep people and machinery at all our Again in 1961, despite all the desperate measures of the last budget, real growth eludes us.

No fair-minded Canadian can say, of course, that the government alone is responsible for these conditions but its collection of the conditions but its collection of the conditions but its collection but its conditions but its condi tions but its policies patently have & failed to make good its original election promises. They are seen now, on the threshold of another election, all their glaring irresponsibility and no doubt the government wishes it had never made them.

The nation was given to under-stand, in Mr. Fleming's budget of last June, that a deficit of some-thing like a billion dollars, with all the ensuing pressure on the bond market and the heavy inflation of the currency, would soon pay off in prosperity. Thus Canada's con-tinuing financial disorder would be costiy but temporary.

Today there is still no sign of order but, instead, another budget of deficit and inflation. And in the first nine months of 1961 at least economy was still stagnant.

Whether current business recovis due to these remedies or to her eyes mercifully the prosperity of our great export markets in the United States and the old-time citizen of Europe, or to both, is a question which economists will long argue. Final approval of the alternative plan awaits formal action. Before it is taken, the council might give second thought to the argument advanced by Alderman Griffin.

He has tried to make the point that the time spent by aldermen on council and committee business makes aldermanic office unattractive to young men who have growing families to support. He believes public office would be more appealing if the rate of pay were raised. Certainly the alderman's suggestion that council members receive $2,500 for handling the city's $10,000,000 a business is not extravagantparticularly when, according to his figuring, the average alderman resomething between $1 and $1.30 an hour for his present labors

Aid Needed: Keep Out

THE ECONOMIC, POLITICAL and social situation in Brazil continues to imperil the whole program of President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress.

The program, which would funnel $20 billions into South America during the next ten years, must depend heavily on Brazilian acceptance, since this country is the most important in the whole southern continent. Brazil would receive about $700 millions a year through the social and economic rehabilitation plan; but there are signs that the project may encounter heavy going in Brazil itself. This could stall the whole concept.

The reason is that Brazil is in a confused state. There is heavy and still-mounting inflation, the foreign has reached $21/2 political leadership is indecisive, the country has only recently been on the brink of civil war and may yet be again, Communism is an active threat with the opposite danger of a threat with the opposite danger of a rightist military coup.

This would seem to be a wideopen opportunity for United States and European financial aid under the Alliance for Progress. But a strong anti-American movement in Brazil, as well as a determined effort by some Brazilian businessmen to keep competitive capital out, may make the plan impossible.

The Chamber of Deputies has passed a bill which would penalize investment from other lands and may even choke off the existing large foreign financing. This discourages any private contributions to the Alliance program—and private capital is expected to provide about 35 per cent of the total

Squawks, Quacks and Blats

SCIENTISTS HAVE BEEN REporting on some conversations heard recently. An item says the talks are carried on "with whistles, clicks, squawks, quacks, blats and combinations of these, such as click trains or quacks plus whistles . a few tentative, simple meanings have been found in these dialogues, such as 'distress,' 'attention,' 'irritation,' and so on . . ."

Have the scientists' studies been carried out at Geneva meetings, summit talks, United Nations debates, Security Council discussions, federal-provincial conferences, city council meetings?

No, the conversations have been held in tanks of water, and the participants have been porpoises, otherwise called bottlenose dolphins. But it makes you sort of wonder, doesn't it?

tribal gatherings which used to be organized by the tribe's chieftainess of 40-odd years ago.

For great occasions, the chieftainess wore a great deal of lace. At first glance, you might have taken her for a gilt-edged edition of Whistler's Mother. But she had a hawk nose, a decisive mouth, a brilliantly acid wit, and an iron will. She was in fact rather like one of the most successful Roman emperors disguised as Whistler's Mother. When she beckoned, the whole tribe

In Isolation

This was the reason for the little table. The pre-adolescent contingent had to eat their Christmas dinner in isolation, because there was not an inch of room at the big table for so much as a single child. This was only proper in the opinion of the chieftainess, about Christmas had been formed in the tribal, still small-town New York of the 1880's.

From the same source of inspiration, the chieftainess drew other views about the right way to celebrate Christmas. For one thing, Christmas dinner, although it was really lunch, was always very late indeed.

But year after fleeting year, the children eagerly returned to the little table, thinking only of the delights of gorging themselves silly, and never thinking of the often lurid, inevitable

All this is now recalled, alas, for a sadly negative reason. There was no suckling pig-with-an-apple-in-its-mouth for this year's Christmas present. Shrinking Kitchens

On that occasion, American kitchens having been progressively shrinking, the pig was not home-cooked. Mingled thoughts of Charles Lamb's essay and little pigs eaten in Hong Kong caused application to be made to a Chinese restaurant.

The restaurant owner, all smiling seeming comprehension, promised to find the pig' to roast it in his capacious oven, and to bring the dish to be warmed up just before the tribal assembly.

He was a little late. The next genera tion was just arriving when a small truck also arrived, and two Chinese briskly emerged. A wide-eyed juvenile audience watched with mounting horror while the two Chinese trotted up the front steps, bending under the heavy burden of a massive wooden stretcher

On the stretcher, spread-eagled like a casualty of some dreadful battlefield, lay an entire hundred-pound young porker. One of the most youthful mem-bers of the audience burst into tears, under the impression that he would soon be asked to experiment with can

Forty Years

The lesson is clear. Attempts to row backward up the river of time always end either tragically or comically or both. The rule now is, no roast pig at Christmas, roast pig only in Hong Kong, or better still in Paris. Progress has its iron laws, even more powerful than the iron will of the former chieftainess. These laws must be obeyed.

Yet one wonders. Forty years from will there still be a tribe, and will the tribe still annually forgather to celebrate the Christmases yet to come? If so, will some sentimental traditionalist try, at least once, to have a real

"You've been frost-biting," Bob Hutchison said.

"Come and see how the other half lives. It was more like an order than an invitation. But one doesn't run from Mr. Hutchison. Old age (he must be pushing 30) and legal robes have not diminished his sprinter's speed to the point where an ancient scribe had a chance for a getaway.

Thus it was last week that your agent, in the waning stages of icy paralysis brought on by watching people sail small boats, in indecent weather, joined Mr. Hutchison at Hutchison had been slightly vague about the purpose of the trip. He had mumbled something about the "Health Club... completely renovated part of the basement... steam baths... muscle-building machines, etc." I am a great admice of health-building devices. E. pecially from afar. My idea of calisthenics is to refrain from letting anyone flick the ashes from my cigar. Like Diefenbaker and Kennedy say, you have to do these things yourself to keep fit.

'A Nice, Light Lunch ... EXERCISE?

Anyway, there was Hutchison at the Y, holding onto a small satchel (lawyers use them to carry their money) and saying: "All set?"

"Certainly," I said. "First we'll have clam chowder, then steak, potatoes, an-

"Never mind your stomach," Hutchison interrupted.
We'll eat/dater. After we go through the Health Club."
The latter, it developed, is a triumph of mind over

The "matter" was the west half of the Y basement. For years it was merely a musty labryinth of pipes, cobwebs and dust, suitable only for a caucus of spooks.

The "mind" was the determination of Y directors to turn it into a useful facility. They settled on a Health Club for young husinessmen.

young businessmen. They had tried it before.

But flabby young executives soon wearied of small boys running through their legs, lockers that wouldn't lock, and drab surroundings. They stayed away in droves.

Y Men Want to Shed the Monkey

To "do it right" this time the Y board of brainpowe found 80 young men willing to part in advance with $80 each. Using the money judiciously they have created a health club with atmosphere, equipment, steam room and showers. And lockers that lock. They even have a small lounge with telephone. This allows members who want action to slide out of the steam box and call their broker or bookie as the mood dictates.

Having seen the basement transformation and been duly impressed, I was all ready to hit the clam chowder, steak, etc. Not Hutchison. He threw gym shoes, a T-shirt, shorts at me and said: "Put those on, You have to get the

The Feeling Was There - Somewhere

Elderly people should know better than to get involved in boys' games. But away we went, the athlete and Hutchison. We played basketball, ran a four-minute mile around the banked track. (26 laps to the mile), pedalled a stationary bicycle. (Just to make the game more interesting they apply tension to the front wheel. This leaves the rider with the impression he is scaling the Empress Hotel.)

We finished in the steam room. Nothing can exceed it for meditation or learning what a stewed prune endures.

Before releasing the victim, Hutchison sent him to George Wilkinson, manipulator of muscles and massage. A former trainer (Victoria Tyces Cougas) he tells good stories and works hard at restoring sunken chests to their proper.

Hutchison came in, carrying a cheeseburger. For a fellow hungry enough to eat the whole Hereford, it seemed pitifully inadequate.

"You get the feel of it, OK?" he asked.

"Sure," the victim replied. "At least I'm sure I will.
When the feeling returns."

32 SUNSET CEREMONIES FOR BIG YEAR

Thirty - two sunset cere nonies and parades will be scheduled for centennial year to thrill people who like a show of military pomp and eremony.

The plans call for a troop ng of the color ceremony sometime during May by the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. The unit also will undertake one of the sunset ceremonies at the Legislative Buildings flagstaff.

Other sunset ceremonies will see the RCN performing six times, local minus units nine times and various

ASK The TIMES

Q Could you please explain what is meant by the words: "It is the old problem of the wine and the bottles? CBF.

A. The words probably refer to the following passage from the Bible (Matthew IX, 17): "Neither do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are pre-served." A local clergyman has interpreted this to mean that old ideas are constantly giving place to the new in re-ligion, politics, or everyday ex-perience. But if rules are constantly changing, principles

On Hors d'Oeuvres Stand

By PENNY SAVER

When friends are dropping in, off and on all day, a smart tess will make sure there is something always on hand

Smart little hors d'oeuvres stands I saw are made of a well-finished hardwood. Some are built in a modern form as Bambi, with spindly legs, a round body, with holes for picks and a perky head. They are 85 cents which includes a package of colored picks. Larger stands are what I took to be giraffes.

They are made along the same lines as the others but with more area for pickles, olives or what have you. They are $1.

Nothing is more disconcerting to the man of the family than to be all prepared to open a bottle of any kind and find that there isn't an opener handy. So surprise your man by getting one for New Year's.

One I've in mind has a heavy silver-colored metal in the shape of a hand. Opener is on the wrist and across the back

CBS Presents Hour-Long Year-End Review at 10 on C-7, 11, 12

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

WHAT PERSONS possessing an ounce of admiration for bravery or a memory that goes back to those black, depressing days of 1940 can forget the exploits of Capt. B. A. W. Warburton-Lee of the Royal Navy's destroyer Hardy? He was the first to win (April 10) a Victoria Cross in the Second World War. It was awarded posthumously.

Therefore picht the districtions deeds of this gallant

War. It was awarded posthumously.

Tuesday night the illustrious deeds of this gallant naval officer and all those with him at Narvik were recalled as the CBC presented over Chahnel 2 the first half-hour segment of the 13-week made-in-England documentary covering the various engagements of ships of the RN during the 1939-45 conflict.

What with the commentary presented by cohosts, First Sea Lord, Admiral Sir Casper John, GCB, who introduces each enjace from the Board Room of

Old Style

slower brewing is an Old Style tradition

Old Style is calmly brewed, with no concern for time. Faithful to our original recipe, carefully selected barley, hops and yeast are blended, brewed and, apilano finally, put away to mature slowly in quiet ageing cellars. Brewed in this traditionally unhurried manner, Old Style's brilliant colour, fine flavour, and mellow taste mature naturally. Slower brewing is the reason so many
